HANDICAPPING TIPS FOR THE PRESEASON

Preseason Football is not as exciting for the fans as the regular NFL season since the games do not count toward the standings and, for the most part, the 1st stringers make only cameo appearances. The fourth quarter of many games (especially the early ones) feature 4th and 5th stringers who were undrafted free agents and are longshots to make the team. While NFL Preseason Football is not as exciting to watch from the fans' standpoint, it is from a gambler's point of view. This is our 30th year in the handicapping business and we can tell you firsthand that it is far easier to predict the outcome of Preseason games than it is for the NFL regular season!!!! In the book "Ten Keys to a Winning Season", there is a chapter devoted strictly to handicapping NFL Preseason Football. While the chapter is lengthy and contains more information than can be provided in this space, we will share with you some handicapping tips for the upcoming NFL Preseason.

Rule #1 - Handicap Preseason far differently than the NFL regular season. The first rule in handicapping Preseason football is to throw out ALL thoughts of how you handicap the regular season. In the NFL regular season all the coaches and players WANT to win and try to win each and every game. In the Preseason many coaches just want to evaluate personnel and they care very little about the outcome of the game. Other coaches want to win the game so their team can gain confidence heading into the year. Sometimes there are also talent mismatches on the field due to coaches resting starters and other teams just having better 2nd and 3rd stringers.

Rule #2 - Beware of coaches that do not care. We touched on this above as some coaches just do not care about the final outcome of Preseason contests. Marv Levy of Buffalo had a team that was almost always among the elite of the AFC, participated in 4 Super Bowls and annually made the playoffs in the '90's. His priority during Preseason was to make sure his veterans were rested and HEALTHY for the upcoming season. Marv compiled a 15-28-1 ATS mark during the Preseason but always opened the regular season strong and it was a philosophy that worked. The same happened with the Dallas Cowboys during their Super Bowl years. From 1992-1995 they won three Super Bowls with two different coaches (Jimmy Johnson and Barry Switzer) who could have cared less about the Preseason and just wanted to keep their players healthy. They were 5-15 ATS in that span in Preseason play!!!

Rule #3 - Look for coaches who WANT to win. Sometimes a coach takes over a losing team and wants to instill a winning attitude. Jimmy Johnson went 4-0 both SU and ATS in his first year with Dallas as head coach after taking over a poor team. Yes, this was the same JJ who did not care about results a few years later. Jerry Glanville was a coach that always wanted to win and went 19-10-3 ATS at both Atlanta and Houston. When Dennis Green took over at Minnesota he wanted to instill a winning attitude and his teams went 8-1 ATS in his first two years with a lot of blowouts. Coaches can play their starters longer, design gameplans for a specific team (while their opponent plays it straight up with a vanilla offense and defense) and run trick plays and reverses. Coaches do change (like JJ and Green) so try to get a feel each year for how the coach views the importance of Preseason.

Rule #4 - Look for teams that want to blitz often. Teams rarely work on blocking schemes vs the blitz during practices. For that reason, the blitz is a very successful tactic in Preseason especially vs O-lines that are a mishmash of different units. Usually there is a gentlemen's agreement about blitzes but some coaches ignore that. Glanville got his solid Preseason record mainly due to frequent blitzes. Tom Coughlin changed his defense to a blitzing scheme in 1997 and he wanted to work on it during the games. He went 4-0 ATS, winning by an average of 13.2 ppg that year. Look for teams that will blitz often and play on them.

Rule #5 - Follow the Quarterback Rotations. Coaches usually announce which QB's will play and for how long a day prior to game time. This is a vital part of handicapping as some teams have 2 or 3 very solid veteran QB's while others may be playing an undrafted rookie free agent in the 2nd half who has no shot of making the team. When George Seifert was head man at San Fran, he had a QB rotation of Montana, Young and Bono and that was a mismatch vs most teams rotations and he compiled a 21-7 SU Preseason record his first 6 years there. You can do what we do and that is search the Internet for daily stories from all 32 NFL teams and also rely on the numerous scouts in those cities to follow which QB's will play and for how long. Or you could take an easier route and simply call our Full Service Line and listen to Button #5 where we let you know all the upcoming rotations as they are announced.

The last 2 times Pittsburgh was in the Super Bowl ('05 & '08) they missed the playoffs the next year. LY Pittsburgh, despite some key injuries, finished #14 on offense and #2 on defense. Since the AFC North draws the NFC and AFC West this year they face the #30 schedule overall and that will make them a contender for the AFC's #1 seed. This team should have better health and did not have a lot of roster moves in the offseason. They have the same coaching staff in place and played a game in Feb so they could be the least impacted of any team by the lockout. Seven of the last 10 Super Bowl losers have failed to make the playoffs the next season but there is too much talent here.

Coach Harbaugh is the 4th NFL HC since 1990 to guide his team to 3 playoff berths in his first 3 yrs. Since BAL is a very talented tm and is matched against our #28 rated schedule, odds are good it will be 4 for 4. LY they tied for first in the North but lost the tiebreaker and lost at PIT in their 2nd straight road playoff gm. An early season home loss to CIN was a key factor. This team is a year older and was only #22 on offense and #10 on D in '10 as they benefitted from 8 wins by 7 or less. They had a def ypp of 18.9 and tms have a weaker record 90% of the time after that. Their deletions far outnumber the additions this year but they only have 2 road games vs teams who made the playoffs LY.

The Browns BEAT NO and NE LY and lost to the Jets in OT! Unfortunately they were among the weakest statistically at #29 on off and #22 on def. They are improved across the board this year with Colt McCoy in his 2nd year and taking good leadership during the lockout. They are better suited to the 4-3 and move to that this year and add #1 and #2 DC's on the DL. They had 4 net close losses LY. Unfortunately they have a new HC and new coord's and they did not get to implement their systems during the lockout so they were hurt as much as any team by the labor issues. They will be thinking playoffs but 4 of the last 5 gms are vs Baltimore and Pittsburgh!

The Bengals have not won a playoff gm S/90 (longest drought in NFL). They won the AFC North in '09 but that was sandwiched between 4-win seasons. We had this team circled as one which could make a big move as they have a lot of key indicators pointing up incl the fact they had 5 net close losses LY and teams off a snn with 4 or more net close losses improved 13 of 14 times. Last year CIN faced the toughest sked and this year just #29. Their first 4 opp's all had losing records LY and 3 or them have new coaches. They were also a respectable #20 on offense and #15 on D LY. Unfortunately they lose QB Palmer, WR Ochocinco, CB Joseph and made no major acquisitions.

Indianapolis was among the most banged up teams in the NFL last year with 18 players on the IR at the end of the year. They were still #4 on off and #20 on def and won their 6th South title in 7 years but their record dropped from 14-2 to 10-6. After a 6-2 start they lost 4 in a row before rebounding but still lost to the Jets at home by 1 in the Wildcard round. This year they get those injured players back and have the potential to have as many as 11 home games with the Super Bowl being played in Lucas Oil Field. They are the only team in the NFL to reach the playoffs in 10 of the last 11 years and provided they stay healthier are a legitimate Super Bowl contender.

The Texans were the AFC's trendy pick for the playoffs and as a dark horse Super Bowl contender LY but we pegged them 3rd in the South and they finished tied for 3rd (and last) at just 6-10. That team was 4-2 at one point but lost 8 of their next 9. Despite the losing record, they were #3 on off and #30 on def and outgained their opp on the year. They bring in a new DC in Wade Phillips and their top 5 picks in the draft were all on defense and they added CB Jonathan Joseph and S Danieal Manning in Free Agency. With an improved defense and one of the top offenses in the NFL the Texans will have their second ever winning season and best record ever.

In '09 we went out on a limb and called for the tm with the best record in the AFC to miss the playoffs and they went just 8-8. Last year TEN opened 5-2 but were doing it with mirrors as they had 2 wins where they were outgained by 190 and 200 yards. They lost 8 of their last 9 and now have a new HC and a new QB as they jettisoned both Fisher and Young who could not get along. They were #27 on off and #26 on def and spent their #1 DC was on QB Jake Locker who is not ready to start in the NFL. They do have a softer schedule (#27) than JAX (#3) and despite being the least talented team in the South, they may not finish alone in the basement. This sure looks like a rebuilding year.

Expectations were low for JAX LY and while they opened 3-4 including an upset of Indy their losses were by an avg score of 32-10. They surprisingly won 5 of their next 6 incl wins over Dallas and Houston and were 8-5 before dropping the last 3. They were #15 on off and #28 on def. They signed 4 key FA's on defense and also lost a few (see right). They were -31 ypp despite their 8-8 record. Their schedule gets a lot tougher as they play faced 4 playoff tms LY and now have 7 gms vs 2010 playoff teams and we rate it as the third toughest. The Jags could surprise and overachieve again but we will call for them to finish in

The Patriots made some surprising moves in Free Agency bringing in WR Ochocinco and DT Haynesworth and we expect Belichick to get the most out of both. Heading into the playoffs last year NE at 14-2 was the heavy favorite to win the Super Bowl but was upset at home in the first game by the Jets and have not won a playoff game since 2007. Look for that streak to end this year and with Brady still at peak form (36-4 ratio LY) this team is even stronger than '10. They were only #8 on offense and #25 on defense LY and those numbers will be much stronger in 2011 and it should be another AFC East title and some playoff wins.

Last year the Jets were almost everyone's favorite to win the AFC (not ours, we had them 2nd in the East) and while they finished 3 games behind NE in the standings they beat them in the playoffs and are 4-2 in the playoffs the last two years despite playing all 6 on the road. QB Sanchez was just #27 in pass eff including a 9-13 ratio the last 11 reg ssn gms. They were expected to sign Asomugha but whiffed and NE got better at the same time. They were better statistically than NE in '10 (#1, #3), were 2-1 vs the Pats and must be considered a Super Bowl contender but we will call for a third straight 2nd place finish in the East.

The Dolphins have gone 7-0 the last 2 yrs and while they beat GB and the Jets on the road LY they also lost at home to CLE, BUF and DET! They were #21 on offense and #6 on defense. They were -12 in TO's and had a poor off ypp of 18.9 both signs pointing upward this year. Chad Henne is the ? on the team as they once again have a top ten defense and have a great shot at improving on that 7-9 total but also face the 5th toughest schedule in the NFL with HOU, SD, PHI, NYG, KC, DAL and of course the Pats and Jets twice each. A threat to top 7 wins but not really a playoff contender.

We projected Buffalo as one of the weakest teams in the NFL LY and they opened 0-8 but actually went 4-4 in the 2H of the year. For the season they were #25 on offense and #24 on defense. Their top 4 picks in the draft were on D including DE Dareus who was the top def player in the draft. They do play a brutal schedule as the AFC East draws the NFC East this year and they play in a tough division with two of the preseason Super Bowl favorites. This team is pointed in the right direction with a lot of young talent and may get more out of the QB position than most anticipate but they play the toughest schedule in the NFL and may not improve too much on LY's 4 win total.

We knew at the end of last season that the Chargers would be our pick to win the weak AFC West and the offseason did nothing to diminish that. They were a preseason favorite for the Super Bowl LY and finished #1 in the NFL on offense and #1 in the NFL on defense but amazingly went just 9-7 and did not make the playoffs. They lost 4 gms where they outgained their opp by 192, 247, 227 and 184. They bring in LB Spikes from SF and if Bob Sanders stays healthy they add a potential Def MVP at S. Philip Rivers will guide one of the top offenses again and SD winning the West is probably the easiest of the division winners to forecast!

Last year we went against the grain and picked KC 2nd in the West while they were generally picked 3rd or 4th. KC opened 5-2 then lost to OAK and DEN but won 5 of the next 6 and won the West at 10-6 and were #12 on offense and #14 on D. They beat exactly ONE team with a winning record as they faced a soft schedule and despite going 1-1 vs the Chargers they were outgained 815-264 in those 2 games! They got mauled in the playoffs by BAL (-229 yds). They do lose OC Weis to Florida and the schedule gets a lot tougher as they only faced 2 tms LY that made the playoffs and now have 7 gms vs tms we rank in the Top 10.

Heading into LY Denver had been 45-35 the previous 5 yrs but we called for a 5-11 finish and they actually went just 4-12 and got rid of coach McDaniels and brought in John Fox from Carolina. Denver was #13 on off but #32 on defense. This year they get back DE Dumervil who had 17 sks in '09 but was inj'd LY and also added sack machine Von Miller with their 1st pick. They kept their OC, had 3 net close losses and we feel QB Tebow will surpass most folks expectations. This team could open 3-0 which would have them playing with confidence much like 2009's unexpected fast start and Fox will take advantage of that momentum.

Northcoast Sports Economy Club

Many of our customers think this is a new concept, but we've been offering the Economy Club Midweek Phone Selections for almost 3 decades. The Economy Club is different from the Executive Club in that we release selections on Wednesday, to be used in conjunction with your POWER SWEEP newsletter. The selections are released as a Top Selection and then ranked numerically 2, 3, 4 etc for both the College and Pro for the week in the order of where we are looking at matchups for the weekend. The Top Selection (for both College and Pro) will be the best pick as of Wednesday and may or may not be a Key Selections in POWER SWEEP. The remaining plays are non-Power Sweep selections. Typically, we release anywhere from 10-17 College selections and between 5-7 NFL selections each week. The Economy Club runs through regular season only (your POWER SWEEP subscription is included and is valid for the entire 2011 season). Don't miss out this year on one of Northcoast Sports' most affordable options for Selections (a $595 Value!)

Call 1.800.654.3448 • First Plays are available on Aug. 31st!

This is the easiest of the first place teams to pick in the NFC. Division champs only repeat 37% of the time but GB despite winning the Super Bowl was not the division champ LY Green Bay led the NFL in starts lost to injury and should stay healthier and is solid at every position with one of the NFL's best QB's. They had 2 net close losses during the reg season but did also have a net close wins in the playoffs including two games in which they were outgained. GB had 91 stis lost to injury LY and only 3X's recently has that happened. The other 3 did not even top 6 wins while GB was still #9 on offense and #5 on D. We will call for the Packers to bag their first North title since 2007 and they are the favorites to repeat as Super Bowl Champs.

Last year the Bears were coming off a 7-9 year but we said they were a contender in the North despite both Minny and GB being SB contenders. After a 4-3 start the Bears won 7 of their next 8 to wrap up the #2 seed and then in a meaningless game lost to GB allowing the Packers to make the playoffs. After delivering as our Playoff Play of the Year, in a game they led 28-0 and 35-10, they lost to GB at home in the NFC Title game when Cutler was injured and said he could not return. The Bears were actually -25 ypg despite their 11-5 record as they were #30 on off and #9 on def. LY 10 of their opp had losing records and this year they take on the #9 schedule. We will go out on a limb and call for the NFC's #2 seed of '10 to miss the playoffs.

With Detroit going just 2-30 in '08 and '09 they were able to get some very high DC's and begin to build. LY they lost all 3 QB's to injury at some point including Stafford. They still tripled their win total of the previous two years with SIX. They beat 3 teams at the end of the year that were still in the playoff hunt! They were #17 on off and #21 on def. They drafted DL Fairley to add to a very young and talented D-line led by Suh plus Stafford is back They do play the 4th toughest schedule in the NFL but this is a talented team that gained confidence during their 4 game win streak and they should escape the basement in the North for the 1st time since 2007, possibly flirting with .500.

The Vikings had the SB within their grasp in 2009 and came up a late int short. LY they were among the pre-season favorites but Brett Favre went from #2 in the NFL in QB rating (107.2) to #29 in 2010 with an 11-19 ratio and it all came crashing down in a 6-10 season which also ended his starting streak. Minny let DE Edwards, DT Kennedy, WR Rice and numerous others depart and Donovan McNabb comes in to tutor Ponder at QB. Frazier was 3-3 as the HC down the stretch LY and this team still has plenty of talent and could surprise as they were -11 in TO's and had 6 fewer wins than the year before and an off ypp of 17.9 all indicators pointing to an improved record.

Just two years ago we went out on a limb and called for the Saints to win the NFC South (picked 3rd of 4th by most) and they went on to win the Super Bowl. Check out the Atlanta write-up for some interesting NFL South history. LY the Saints suffered some injuries and dropped to 11-5 and then their banged up team got shocked by 7-9 Seattle in the 1st round. Drew Brees ran perhaps the best lockout camp of any team and this team is hungry to get back to the top. They were #6 on off and #4 on def and while they lose RB Bush they plug in Sproles from SD. A lot of people maligned their rush D after that playoff loss but 7 times LY they allowed less than 100 yds rush. NO is back to being a SB contender.

The NFC South was formed in '02 and the defending champ of that div has not fared well going 0-8 in repeat attempts. LY NO finished 2nd which was the best ever with the other champs combining for 5 third place finishes and 2 fourths! ATL was the NFC's #1 seed LY after rolling to a 13-3 record but then were mauled by GB at home 48-21. ATL is a solid on the rise team which added #1 DC WR Jones and one of the more sought after DE's and look stronger. The '10 Falcons were actually OUTGAINED on the year and were only #16 on off and #16 on D during the season. They had FIVE net close wins and beneficial ypp's on both offense and defense. Call for the South jinx to continue.

Last year Raheem Morris called the season a race to 10 wins despite that most thought TB was a bottom 10 team in the NFL. It was a GREAT story as they carved thru a cupcake schedule and nearly made the playoffs at 10-6 but had 9 wins over tms with losing records and one vs a Saints tm resting its starters. They also had 0 sellouts. Their young tm did make some solid gains in the offseason and got a steal with #2 DC Bowers. They are stronger than LY but won't match the record as they were just #19 on off and #17 on D and face a tougher schedule. They also only have 7 HG's with a trip to London and while stronger won't match LY's 10 win total.

This team figures to be a pointspread darling this year. They won the South in 2008 but have dropped to 8-8 and 2-14 the last 2 years. Last year with poor QB play they were #32 on offense and #18 on defense. They will be a popular pick for worst team in the NFL and hence are underrated. Their ypp's on both off and def were among the worst LY and that points to improvement. It is not good that they have a new HC with new coord's during the lockout year which puts them behind but they were surprisingly aggressive in the FA market and Cam can turn bad plays into good ones. They do play the toughest schedule in terms of opp sin % but will be better than expected.

Last year the Eagles were fortunate to win the East. They actually benefited from QB Kolb getting injured and Michael Vick had a season beyond anyone's expectations. They still trailed the Giants in the East deciding game 31-10 mid-4Q, but got a miracle win. Despite being minutes from being eliminated from any shot at the East, that win gave them the tie breaker (both finished 10-6) and the title. They got beat at home in the 1st round by GB but did have a 43 yd edge. They were #2 on off and #12 on def and we were looking at picking either Dallas or the NYG this year. Then came Free Agency. The signings of Asomugha, Rodgers-Cromartie, Babin, Jenkins, etc help PHI have a shot at its first ever SB win.

The Cowboys were rated #2 in the ESPN ratings prior to LY and everybody considered them a prime Super Bowl contender. Tony Romo was then injured and they opened 1-7 before going 5-3 down the stretch under then-interim HC Garrett who takes over the reins this year. They did cut a lot of overpaid, underperforming vets but did not make the FA splash that we expected (like CB Asomugha). They did have 5 net close losses last year and actually outgained their opp's LY (#7 off, #23 def) despite their 6-10 record. This team has nearly the same talent as the one who everyone perceived as one of the NFL's best LY and with a healthy Romo could be a surprise contender in the East in 2011!

Washington has now finished last in the NFC East for 3 straight years and it looks like TY could be 4th in a row. LY Wash was coming off a 4-12 season despite having a top 10 D and all signs pointed upward and they improved to 6-10 but did not match the improvement we expected as QB McNabb played poorly and lost his job (off #18) and the defense fell to #31. They were 4-3 at one point but lost 6 of the next 7. They did make a lot of moves in Free Agency but failed to upgrade the QB pos with LY's #3 John Beck taking over TY despite not seeing the field since his 4 sts with MIA in '07. They do only play 6 gms vs tms who had a winning record LY including just 2 in the first ELEVEN games which could have them an overrated "play against" team in December.

The Rams were just a combined 6-42 from '07-'09 and "earned" the first pick in the 2010 draft, QB Sam Bradford who was the NFL Rookie of the Year. While the Rams were just #26 on off and #19 on defense, their -34 ypg on the season was 2nd best in this anemic division and in the season finale they were playing for the West title but were outgained in Seattle 333-184 and lost. They came into that game leading the West with a 7-8 record. LY's young team is now more experienced and looks to be improved across the board. The non-conf slate is not easy as they face SEVEN of our top 11 rated teams and they did only beat one team with a winning record LY.

2 DAY DISCOUNT

Each year we allow our readers to take advantage of a special Two Day Discount offer on our Late Phone Service.

This season looks to be another record breaking year for both our College and Pro Late Phone Selections. Our Executive Club is the nation's most elite phone service. You receive every Late Phone Selection we release from the first Preseason game through the Pro Bowl. There are no additional charges or special games like other services offer. Your membership includes EVERYTHING: College and Pro Selections (including Top Opinions on lined games that are not selections), Toll FREE calling, internet access, Over/Unders, every Play of the Year and all the Marquee Plays released from our Private Play Hotline. Our Executive Club members call their own private 800 number, armed with special passcodes on game day and get plays on a taped system.

Due to the popularity in the past, we are selling our Executive Club for the month of September. You will enjoy every benefit that our Yearly Executive Club Members receive (except for a Power Sweep subscription and free Preseason Late Phone Service). Normally September's Exec Service would cost $1,200. We are offering an Early Bird Rate thru Aug. 31, 2011 of $899 but if you sign up on our TWO DAY DISCOUNT we are offering the September Executive Club for JUST $799. This rate is a 2 DAY DISCOUNT price and you will NEVER see a rate that low again this season! It's our way of letting more of our customers enjoy the benefits of the country's most elite Late Phone Service, and now signing up during the 2 Day Discount makes it a no brainer.
