OVERALL - Houston by 8 ✓'s

HOU stumbles into the playoffs but get a team that they have covered 5 straight inc both meetings LY. In the 1st meeting w/ TJ Yates at the helm HOU had a 412-285 yd edge but CIN converted 3 TO's into 17 pts as HOU scored the game winning td w/ 8 sec left. HOU rode Foster (153 yds 6.4) and the defense (3 ints for 14 pts) in the wild card. HOU is +51 ypg at home (+5 TO's) for a 6-2 SU/5-3 ATS mark. BAL/JAX/MI/DEN are the common foes w/ HOU going 5-0 SU/ATS for a 449-280 yd edge (+4 TO's) w/a 35-18 avg score. CIN is 2-3 SU/ATS overall and not counting the 2nd BAL game they own a 342-320 yd edge (-2 TO's) being outscored 26-19. HOU has been outgained in 4 of their L6 gms but they are also just getting OLB Reed back into form.

While Dalton and Green are the faces of the Bengals their #6 D is the strength. However, they have only faced 3 top 10 offenses allowing 393 ypg/27.3 ppg (1-2 SU/ATS). Atkins is a legit contender for DPOY as his 12.5 sks are 2nd only to JJ Watt for an interior DL. This is a sound and deep DL that all'd 66 ypg (3.1) rush in the 5 gms prior to BAL. That they are 2nd in sks by makes DC Zimmer a HC candidate. While the DL is stout the LB's are avg on a good day though rookie UFA Burfitt has been an ideal fit here w/a tm rec'd 14 sts by a rookie. Unlike LY, CIN's DB's have been quite healthy for their #7 pass D and they have the 9th best ypa allowed (6.7) w/a 16-14 ratio. They have done a solid job setting up a still growing West Coast off with the Dalton/Green tandem. Green-Ellis has been just what the CIN system needed for versatility but he can't carry a gm by himself. Green finished 90 yds off the tm single ssn receiving rec'd (1440) and while he can be a top 5 WR in 2 years, CIN has little depth to support him. Gresham has been the best receiving TE for CIN in recent history but Hawkins is a rarely used slot WR. Aside from C Cook, CIN's OL has been very consistent and their 46 sks (26th) are more a function of Dalton than the OL. CIN's #17 ST's ranking is largely due to its below avg work on KR's.

HOU continues to work off the ground game of Foster who has over 1200 yds in each of the L3Y. Schaub only has a 61-30 ratio over that time but it has minimized Andre Johnson's wear and tear. Daniels is at the top of the 2nd tier of rec'g TE's as the Texans spread the ball around after that. Walter is a decent but not standout #3 option but the lack of impact from rookies Martin and Posey (16 rec's 10.8) is disappointing. HOU has a borderline top 10 OL provided RT Newton is healthy. JJ Watt's historic season for HOU (80+ plays at/behind LOS) makes the Texans defense what it is. He has 15 more sks than the starting OLB's (Barwin/Reed) which is unheard of in a 3-4. The rest of the DL is solid but more valuable in run support. HOU has a very formidable CB tandem with Joseph/Jackson but its a concern that they have given up a 16-4 ratio in the L7 games. HOU has our #20 spec tms as they have been poor on both sides of KR's.

A pair of top 10 defenses face off with the Bengals at #6 and the Texans at #8. Prior to LW's meaningless game Cincinnati had held SIX straight opponents to under 300 yds giving up just 265 ypg in that stretch. The Texas D has been consistent allowing 323 ypg but the factor that stands out with Houston's stop unit is that they only give up over 380 yards 4 times this season. Those opponents were NE (#1 off), DET (#3), GB (#16) and Jacksonville (ok 1 bad game). Cincy's offense comes in at #22 and with both teams wanting to run the ball forst the under is the way to go.

OVERALL - Green Bay by 11' ✓'s

After a slow start Rodgers has dominated the passing game again finishing w/less than 10 int in 3 of the L4Y (11 in 2010). The only bad thing that can be said about the Packers off is that the run game is once again very limited. Part is due to Rodgers (8 100+ QBR's TY), part is due to design (often just an extra pass blk'r) and part is due to injury (Benson IR foot). Even though GB lacks a 1000 yd receiver TY this is still a top 3 unit in depth/talent. GB's biggest weakness on offense is the OL which has had 4 diff OL combo's the final 7 gms. Despite being one of the most beat up def's GB's #11 rank is a sign of depth and the fact they've only played 1 team w/a top 10 off in the L10 gms (DET). Raji is the cornerstone of the DL, Matthews for LB's but GB is also quite deep in the secondary. The fact they allow 4.5 ypc is due to 2 strong gms by Peterson and inj's up front. They are better than their #11 pass def rankings (#4 def QBR) as they allow just 55% comp w/a 6.7 ypa (7th). GB has our #11 spec tms unit thanks to Randall Cobb on returns.

Just 6 days ago these two rivals met with GB needing a win for a bye while Minnesota needing a win to get in. That makes this a game of adjustments as the Packers allowed 103 ypg rushing vs non-AP teams and 229 ypg (7.0) vs him. Obviously both teams are 100% motivated in the playoff but GB and Rodgers also have an extra chip on their shoulder off a loss (12-4 ATS) and playing at home after getting rocked by the NY Giants at home in LY's WC round. PP calls the Packers by 7 but we disagree and lean with the better team and better coaching staff to not get upset in B2B weeks to the same hated team.
